

I would like to comment on the proceeding that is considering changing Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. I am against the FCC implementing any change to the Telephone Privacy law that would result in lowering the protections guaranteed private citizens under this law. Since moving to a new house, where our request to be placed on the list of people not wanting telemarketing calls has not yet been processed, I can attest to the fact that I am receiving many more unwanted calls without the protection I had previously under the law (our old residence was listed as not wanting to receive telemarketing calls). I receive at least 15 calls per week from telemarketers that are unwanted - waking me up in the morning, calling on Sundays, hanging up on my answering machine.

PLEASE do not change this law. I was looking forward to finally getting back on the list to stop these annoying, interfering calls.
